

Experience Verification

The Ridgewater College Veterinary Technology Program believes that it is crucial for students entering the program to investigate their chosen career field. The expectation is that incoming students should spend one week or more working or observing in the animal industry in some capacity. Ideally, this experience should be under the supervision of a certified veterinary technician.

Please take a few minutes to complete and return this form explaining the student's experience. Your input is very important and will remain confidential. Only Ridgewater College Admission's staff and Veterinary Technology faculty will review this form.
