Online

About the Program

The poultry industry is extensive in Minnesota, from hobby farms to commercial chicken and turkey operations. To respond to the need for a better trained poultry workforce, Ridgewater College now offers an online Poultry Management certificate.

Developed in partnership with industry leaders and the University of Minnesota, the Ridgewater certificate will provide a solid foundation for potential advanced education or a great complementary skill set for related agriculture programs of study.

Poultry students will gain exposure to:

- Poultry nutrition decision making
- Environmental management for poultry production
- Poultry health management, including disease prevention

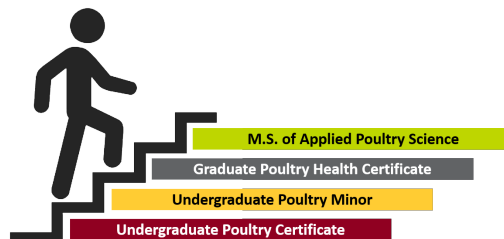

Students will complement the poultry-specific knowledge with elective credits in communication, agri business or farm management, animal science or Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA)

Program Distinctions

- NEW convenient, online training option for in-demand industry
- Expandable education through partnership with the University of Minnesota
- Largest Minnesota two-year agriculture program
- Nationally recognized Outstanding Postsecondary/Adult Agriculture Education program
- Connections with other students and industry reps through Professional Agriculture Students (PAS) club guidelines, plus apply their knowledge in an internship.

Providing multiple levels of poultry education is a primary goal. Ridgewater offers a stackable option to students with the U of MN and a transfer option with Iowa State.
