Hutchinson and Willmar Campuses and Online

It's Okay - It's Common

Determining the right career path can be difficult. Where do you start? And once you start, how do you know it's right?

Not knowing what you want to be when you grow up is more common than you realize. Did you know that about 80% of students in the U.S. change their major at least once? That's according to the National Center for Education Statistics, 2013. On average, college students change their minds about majors at least three times while in college.

Sometimes you just need to start somewhere, explore, test the waters, and see where you discover a passion.

Ridgewater College is a great place to start because we can give you the personal attention you might want to get you going.
